

RICHMOND-BUILT DREDGE AT WORK IN THE RIVER NILE

RICHMOND DREDGE AT WORK ON NILE

Industrial Reputation of This City Has Become International.

GREAT BRITAIN OUTDONE

American Machine "Gets Busy" Six Months Ahead of European Competitors.

The industrial reputation of Richmond has become international. From the palms and pyramids of Egypt comes the emphatic approval of the Anglo-Egyptian government of the work done by the big dipper dredge made and delivered by the Richmond plant of the American Locomotive Works. Not only was this immense machine delivered in Egypt intact in even the smallest particular, but it was delivered ahead of contract time and put in working order six months before two European dredges, ordered at the same time, can begin their work. Six hundred miles south of Khartoum on the upper Nile this Richmond-made dredge is to-day by its steady work and power proving the efficiency of the plant from which it came. On November 1, 1908, on a train of twenty cars, the dipper dredge left Richmond and by June 15, 1909, it was re-erected in Egypt, launched and tested. This was a splendid record in point of time, establishing the fact that the American plant could do its work much more rapidly than its most formidable European competitors.

The transportation of the monster dredge was accomplished without a single hitch or delay of any kind, speaking very highly for the transportation facilities. The Egyptian authorities declared that the dredge was the most carefully packed consignment ever received there, and this was borne out by the fact that not a single nut or bolt was missing.

The test of the dipper dredge was on the Nile, near Khartoum, and was a severe one. Everything in connection with the test passed off satisfactorily to all concerned, and the Egyptian government was delighted, and complimented the builders on the unequalled success of the dredge.

Two dredges of similar capacity were contracted for by the Egyptian government with a well-known firm in Scotland at the same time the Richmond dredge was contracted for, but these European dredges will not be ready for delivery until the end of this year.

The dipper dredge is self-propelling, and is one of the largest type built. Few larger ones have been built anywhere.

It is of a distinctive and exclusive American type, and can be obtained only in this country. The bucket capacity is ten tons, and a load can be handled completely in forty seconds. The machine is 200 feet long and 35 feet in breadth.

Thomas Jardine, of the Richmond plant of the American Locomotive Works, was in personal charge of the dredge during transportation, and directed the re-erection and testing in a manner most satisfactory to the Egyptian authorities.

The dredge will be used for irrigation purposes under direction of the governmental office of public works. The labor used is Egyptian and Sudanese.

PEOPLE AROUSED BY ROAD PROBLEM

Steel Bridge over Roanoke River at Clarksville that will probably be a link in one of the Capital-to-Capital highways.

They Are Rapidly Getting in Humor to Forever Do Away With Miserable Highways.

The articles that have been furnished The Times-Dispatch during the past two weeks by the industrial editor, who engineered the good roads and industrial car through the worst section of Virginia, the worst so far as roads are concerned, were sufficiently informing in that they told the people what bad roads are and where they are and how to make them good. The outcome of the articles is that they showed up the worst side of roads in the State and in a way to put the people on their metal and in the humor to make their roads better.

The car did, however, find some good roads, roads that are object lessons, and that ought to have been seen and traveled over by every good roads advocate in Virginia. The sand-clay blend and gravel-clay blend road that is being built through Dinwiddie county to the Nottoway county line, and has just been completed from the city limits of Petersburg, a distance of six miles, into Dinwiddie county, ought to be seen to be appreciated. It is perfection in the matter of road building. It is being built at a cost of less than $500 per mile, and by road-building experts.

But whether or not this route shall be selected as the capital-to-capital highway, the fact still remains that it will be to the advantage of good roads advocates to get into Dinwiddie county and in Nottoway county and see the six miles in each county of the perfect sand-clay blend and the gravel-clay blend.

ROAD MEETING FOR TO-MORROW

Charlottesville, Gathering to Be One of Largest of Campaign.

CONTINGENT FROM RICHMOND

Addresses by Judge Mann and Senator Martin—Times-Dispatch Car Leaves at Midnight.

The good roads meeting at Charlottesville to-morrow bids fair to be one of the largest and most enthusiastic held yet in the good roads campaign. Not only will there be a large attendance from Albemarle county, but there will also be a considerable contingent who will go from Richmond and other cities. The Times-Dispatch good roads car will leave at midnight for Charlottesville.

A feature that will draw many people to the meeting will be the address on good roads by Judge William Hodges Mann. Of like interest will be an address on the same subject by Senator Thomas S. Martin. These two will expound their views on this important topic, and others will also present the various phases of the question.

The meeting will take place in the courthouse at Charlottesville at 11 o'clock promptly.

Proposed Route. The route on the trip to Charlottesville, as planned by Mr. Saunders, president of the Virginia Supervisors' Association, will be as follows:

Out Brook Road to Solomon's; turn right to Ashland; on to Elliott's Cross-roads; cross Iron Bridge; continue one mile to big gum tree on left; turn sharp to left, following two telephone wires; proceed past Oliver's, Coates's, Jones's Cross Roads, to Brick House; to Louisa; to Shadwell; to Charlottesville.

It is proposed to return to Richmond by way of the James River Road via Goodland Courthouse and the State farm.

Spotsylvania Plenty of Rock for Roads. Nelson county declared to have some of the worst roads in Virginia, and so the following letter from S. H. Fitzpatrick, of Arlington, in that county, will be of interest:

"I have been reading your paper and watching what is stated relative to the best road from there to Washington, and of its being said that rock to make the roadbed would be hard to get if the road went through Spotsylvania county, Va."

"I own a farm near Lewiston, on which there is plenty of granite rock to make miles of road, and the rock is on a branch and could be readily worked. The branch crosses the main county road and runs through the farm in Spotsylvania county, going on to East River. All along the branch for a mile now and then large places of solid granite crop out."

"The land is comparatively level in that portion of the county, and is almost in a direct line from Richmond to the battlefields of the Wilderness and on to Manassas. The subsoil near Lewiston and on my farm is red, and the road in that locality would not be so expensive to construct as lower down, where the subsoil is white and sandy."

People Anxious for Road. "All the people in that portion of the country are anxious to have the road, and will do all they can to insure its success, as they are seven miles from any railroad, their nearest station being Tyler's."

"I would gladly let the road have the rock, and I expect, so would every one else along the route."

"The highway will improve Virginia in many ways that are not yet thought of. It is like a telephone in the house. When the first thought of putting it in comes, one wonders what convenience it can be, but after having it several months you can't do without it."

TWO STATES JOIN IN ROADS MOVEMENT

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) GREENSBORO, N. C., August 26.—At a well-attended meeting here this afternoon, composed of delegates from Lynchburg, Danville and Chatham, Va., and Greensboro, Greensboro, High Point and Lexington, in North Carolina, ever which Dr. J. W. Long, of Greensboro, presided, it was after much discussion unanimously resolved to form an interstate association, to be known as the Virginia-North Carolina Good Roads Association, to be composed of two members from each of the three Virginia counties of Campbell, Bedford and Pittsylvania and the three North Carolina counties of Rockingham, Guilford and Davidson, through which the Southern Railway passes from Lynchburg to Salisbury, and two members from each incorporated town of this route.

The chair was instructed to appoint an executive committee of twelve—two from each of the six counties—of which H. M. Sackett, of Lynchburg, shall be chairman. This committee is to meet on September 28 to select the membership of the permanent association and officers of same, in the interim seeing that local associations, if not already organized, shall be formed to co-operate with the interstate association.

Real Estate News

Renting houses is taking all the time of Richmond real estate agents, and few sales are being reported. Contrary to the custom in many cities, where moving is done in the spring, September 1 has been selected as "moving day" here, and many families are moving on that day.

As the case may be, leases or rental agreements are made from September to September, and families which have found their quarters too large or too small, or in an uncongenial neighborhood, or for any other reason, take advantage of the next ten days or two weeks to move and settle their family effects in new quarters for the fall and winter season.

For several months past there have been an unusually large number of "for rent" signs on houses in all parts of the city, and especially in the West End, where rows of houses have recently been built to rent. There has been division of opinion as to whether this indicated an excess of houses over the demand, or whether it was merely a more general disposition to move about and change houses.

Many real estate agents who early in the summer had long lists of houses for rent lean to this view, and say that when all are sorted out and located for the winter, there will be no great surplus of desirable houses, and that the chances are that the only available houses will be those that are old and out of repair and lacking in modern improvements and conveniences, or else houses held at exorbitant rentals.
